BEST EACH-WAY
OSLO (6.30 Wolverhampton) is no spring chicken but caught the eye on his latest run and looks to be on a decent enough handicap rating. He rarely runs a bad race and Hayley Turner will be weaving a late passage.

HEAVEY'S NAP
KURIMU (4.55 Wolverhampton) caught the eye on her first run for Atchie Watson. Slow out of the blocks, she came from a long way back to hit the line strong. A better exit from the stalls should mean she goes close.

5.00 Newcastle - Class 5 (0-105) Conditionals Handicap Hurdle 2m 190y
 POOR offerings over the jumps today, with thirteen races at two meetings failing to produce a double-figure field between them. I know things get better this week, but that's a turn-off to most punters.

The nearest to anything worth a bet is WILD NEPHIN at Newcastle.

Ryan Potter (or those he trains for) has been known to have a tilt at the ring from time to time, so it's worth noting Wild Nephin has attracted good money on a couple of occasions, firstly when bumping into a monumental gamble in the shape of Owl Of Athens at Uttoxeter when pulled up remarkably early in the contest, and then just three days later at Chepstow where he disappointed.

Three quick runs on the Flat followed, all over trips much too short for this stoutly bred gelding, but it looked like connections might have found the key when he turned in a much better effort when second to the rejuvenated Tara Iti at Huntingdon last time, with either a tongue-tie or better ground helping.

It seems that Potter now has Wild Nephin where he wants him and the stiff track at Newcastle should provide more of a test of stamina than at Huntingdon.

He's certainly given the impression that connections consider him to be leniently treated and this looks his best opportunity to prove that point.

6.30 Wolverhampton - Class 4 (0-85) Handicap 1m 1f 104y

SEAN Woods seems to have his team in good order and that bodes well for the chances of LORDSBRIDGE BLU here.

The son of Havana Grey has been slow to mature, already a four-year-old when making his racecourse debut last July, but he quickly made up for lost time by winning a maiden over C&D on his third outing and he continued to progress after that easy six-length win in September.

In the frame on all three starts in handicaps at up to 1½m, he's bred to do better still being out of the useful Cheveley Park racemare Tempting, a dual winner in her short career who was rated in the 90s by the BHA Handicapper.

A wide draw isn't ideal on paper, but he should be able to get cover easily enough, and have every chance with the race likely to be run at a strong pace and fitness unlikely to be a concern given the form of the stable.
